COUNTY HONORS
DEPEND ON GAME

Fairview Will be Here Tomorrow to Play the High School.

With the county high school championship at stake, Fairview high school will come to Fairmont tomorrow night to clash with the local high school five. Should the Fairview team win they will return to their Paw Paw district homes as the county high school champions. Although there is no handsome loving cup for the title, it is one that will be a severe blow to Fairmont high school to lose, and one that would be an incentive of much rejoicing in the town of Fairview.

Fairmont high school was defeated at Fairview earlier in the season by a 20-18 score. Should Fairmont win at Fairview, they are expecting to do tomorrow night. It would be necessary to play a third game to decide the county title.

Fairview played an excellent game against the Normal on Tuesday night, although they were badly defeated. They had an opportunity to get into the Normal floor where the game tomorrow evening will be played.

When Fairmont played at Fairview a few weeks ago, the largest crowd that ever witnessed an athletic game in that town was present. The high school gymnasium was packed to capacity and on that one game alone, the high school management made over $100. Many of these Fairview fans will accompany the team to Fairmont tomorrow night, while Fairmont will be supported by almost every high school student.

DEFENSE COUNCILS
SEEK SHIPBUILDERS

Quarter of a Million Skilled Workmen Are Needed Right Away.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 7.—Five thousand local or county and community councils of defense, working under the direct supervision of the State Councils of Defense, are enlisted in the task of securing 250,000 volunteer workmen for service in the shipyards of the nation.

Director Walter S. Gifford, of the Council of National Defense, in a telegram today to Governor Cornwell, president of the West-Virginia State Council of Defense, urges the enlistment of skilled artisans in this patriotic service so that America may secure the tonnage necessary to transport our soldiers to France and the supplies to maintain our armies after they have reached the battle front.

The telegram from Director Gifford given out at the headquarters of the State Council of Defense, follows: "The workers that are going to build the nation's ships are scattered across the United States. Our immediate problem is to carry to them the message that to win the war our first need is labor. We must have the artisans in the United States. We must have the skilled, steady man, mature character and perhaps in years, who is willing to move his family from a cherished home and break up comfortable habits and fond associations for a new abode, who is willing to make these sacrifices because he realizes that the success of this nation and the lives are at stake, and only his work, earnest and enthusiastic, can bring an early victory to the great cause of liberty."

"To reach these men and inspire them to patriotic effort is the particular task of the State Councils of Defense with their 5,000 local councils covering all the important industrial centers in the United States. They are particularly fitted for this work. They not only reach into every factory town, but they come into contact with skilled labor. It will be their duty to rouse every competent artisan in the country. The states have already entered energetically into the campaign. Before it is over we intend to have not only 250,000 workmen ready to serve in the shipyards, but many more than that that the nation can select the best, so that as the need for workers grows the yards will fill with a band of steady, earnest toilers putting their hearts and their muscles into their job for the sake of their country."

LURE OF BASEBALL MAY CALL CARRIGAN FROM HIS BANK TO LEAD RED SOX

Baseball has a fascination for those who play it. Ball players stick to the game as a general rule, just as long as they can find some one to hire them. And it isn't always for the money there is in it. There are in baseball today many players who probably could make more money out of their professions if they chose to quit the game and go into some other line of endeavor.

Old Honus Wagner, after declaring time after time that he had played his last game of baseball, could not resist the call last year and tried a "comeback." Many players endure playing far down in the minors so they can be in touch with the game.

Which is merely a preamble to the case of Bill Carrigan.

Rumors are emanating out of Boston and from rather authoritative sources, that Bill will be back at the helm of the Red Sox this year in place of Jack Barry, who is serving in the navy.

Carrigan retired from baseball after the 1916 world series with a definite determination statement that he would never engage in the game again. He went to Lewiston, Maine, where he has engaged in the banking business. His business enterprises have been successful. He has made money and is in the way of making more. His home is in Lewiston—for him the surroundings are ideal—with one exception.

The exception is the lure of baseball. Will it draw him back into the game? The wise ones at Boston say it will and if it does Clarence Rowland and other American league managers will have something to really worry about.

In the last few years there have been few managers who have equalled Carrigan's ability. A catcher of the highest type himself, Carrigan is a wonder at developing pitchers. Babe Ruth, Joe Leonard and other pitchers are the product of his skill along this line.

He is a field general of great ability. He thinks quickly and acts with speed and determination. He demands and gets discipline from his men. Jack Barry was not a failure at Boston. Perhaps even with Carrigan at the helm Boston would have lost last year, but this year with the addition of the new material secured from the Athletics, with the air-tight pitching staff and Carrigan at the helm, Boston will be a worthy rival for any club in the league.

Watson-Huitt.

The marriage of Miss Sallie Huitt and John Watson, of Monongah, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the residence of the officiating minister, Rev. C. D. Mitchell, pastor of the Central Christian church.

The Normal must beat the Salem Indians by a bigger score than did W. V. U. at Morgantown.

The Business Girls' athletic contest is expanding. Tuesday night one of the girls got married.

Checkers is gradually becoming the big winter game in Fairmont. Only a matter of time until an unknown champion shows himself—one that can beat either Powell, Dr. Jamison, Kelley or even Uncle Dan Aumiller.

HARD NUT TO CRACK ON FOOD REGULATION

White Cloud Manager Asks Some Perplexing Questions.

"Hard nuts to crack" are some of the questions that D. B. Aumiller, proprietor of The White Cloud, asks State Food Administrator Oglebay, in a letter today. To the average man they may appear trivial and unimportant, but to the restaurant man they are very essential and many of these same questions restaurant men everywhere are trying to solve.

For instance the restaurant man is not supposed to sell meat on a meatless day. Now many railroad men get their lunch made up at the restaurants before they go on their runs for the night. Frequently they come into restaurants open all night and before the stroke of 12 they are on their engines and out on the road. Technically it is still meatless day and the restaurant men wonder if they dare sell this meat until perhaps the next morning at 3 o'clock. The impostor might work the same racket to get a ham sandwich on a porkless day. Here is a copy of the questions asked:

In case a man gets a meal and then wants a sandwich or pie is it legal to serve him bread on a sandwich to finish out on.

How much rye bread shall we serve at one meal to each person?

May we serve pie with 25 per cent barley flour or corn flour on wheatless day?

In case of packing a pail how many sandwiches may we put in same in case the lunch is for noon meal, and the man leaving early in the morning can we put meat in his pail. Or on Saturday if he goes out on the road are we allowed to pack his pail with ham sandwiches if he does not eat them until after midnight?

On porkless days are we allowed to fry in compound lard on these days? May we serve war bread toasted before 11 a. m. And may we serve war bread before 11 a. m. each day. May we serve war bread on wheatless days?

How much rye or corn bread may we serve at one time at one meal? May we serve two ounces of wheat or war bread here corn bread or rye is served? Now in case a restaurant is open day and night when shall his porkless day begin and when does it close? Then in case we have some meat as pork or beef that cannot be preserved 48 hours shall we serve it or obtain a loss, or in case we have a few pies left on our hands or some white bread or buns that will be too hard to serve by the next day shall we run the moult or what will we do in that case? Since we have always observed these days we have lost 26 pies and some buns by trying to hold them and observe these days.

At this distance from the water we are compelled to get fish from the shore the week before, which makes it very unhandy to keep them fresh for Tuesday. The way the express service is we can not have them shipped on Monday and receive them here by Tuesday. I would like to get answers on these questions as I want to abide by the law and not take any chances on breaking it.

Another Bowling Match Postponed

Another of the "Y" Commercial league bowling matches was postponed yesterday evening. The Hartley five and the Consolidation Coal Company team were scheduled to play. The Consolidation team could not roll because of the coal dinner at The Fairmont yesterday evening. The two teams will roll a double header next week to make up for the postponed game.
